

Museums in the Anthropocene: Art, Affect, and Action

In these times of cascading social and ecological crisis, the question of how we imagine, describe, and perform our relationship with the world around us has acquired a new urgency. Taking shifting configurations of curation and catastrophe as its provocation, this afternoon seminar will bring together two leading scholar-practitioners to investigate the challenges and opportunities of museums and other exhibition spaces as catalysts for social change in the Anthropocene, this new geological epoch of our own making.

Date/Time: June 27th, 2017 - 1.30 pm - 3.30 pm
Venue: Preben Hornungstuen at Stakladen

This exciting event is free and open to everyone.

Speakers:

Jennifer Deger is Assistant Professor at James Cook University, Australia.
Jennifer writes on digital culture, experimental museology, and contemporary Aboriginal communities.

Anette Vandsø is Assistant Professor Aarhus University.
Working in collaboration with ARoS Aarhus Art Museum, Anette writes on contemporary art, experimental music, and the role that aesthetics play in Danish culture.